Post-War Program

THE WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS
BY COL. MARY A. HALLAREN
Director, Women's Army Corps

THE War Department's decision to ask Congress for a permanent Women's Army Corps was not the result of snap judgment. It was the conclusion of twenty-five years' progressive thinking.

Shortly after World War I, a far-sighted Army officer recommended that plans be made for the utilization of women in case of a future emergency. That, of course, was the "war to end wars." Ridicule of such fantastic thoughts as the possibility of another war or the use of women in the Army, stifled the idea.

Periodically, during the intervening years, the thought was revived; but it was not until World War II that it took root. Born in 1942 of the Army's need of skilled personnel, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps served with the Army, not in it. It took just a year to prove that it would be an advantage to the military service to shift those prepositions. In 1943, the Corps was legally adopted by the Army and became the Women's Army Corps, AUS.

Doubting Thomas' listed only four job classifications for the first Wacs—cook, driver, clerk and telephone operator. Shortly after they dropped that second "a", Wacs were filling over two hundred military job classifications. They were assigned to four hundred installations in the United States. They served in twenty-two countries overseas. The Army's progressive thinkers were convinced.

And so, in April of this year, the War Department introduced a Bill into Congress to establish the Women's Army Corps in the Regular Army, with a strength not to exceed 2% of the authorized strength of the Regular Army. The Navy paralleled it with a Bill to include women in their Regular establishment. And the Senate gave its unanimous blessing to both. That was just three days before Congress adjourned. Come January, the "Women's Armed Services Integration Act of 1947" will start on the second lap of its trip through Congress, when it comes up for House hearings. Time is a major factor, for the Women's Army Corps, AUS, will terminate on 1 July 1948.

General policies for the utilization of Regular Army Wacs are crystallized in the four reasons which the War Department's Director of Personnel and Administration, Major General Willard S. Paul, gave Congress, in advocating speedy and favorable legislative action on the Women's Army Corps Bill. They are: (1)

The Special Gold Medal presented yesterday at the direction of President Truman to General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States. The medal was struck by the U. S. 5-Yr. Air Plans Urged
To President's Board

A strengthened program of air industrial procurement planning, based on five-year periods, rather than one year, was recommended to the President's Air Policy Commission by industrial leaders this week.

Among those putting forward such plans were Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, USA-Ret., President of the Aircraft Industries Association of America, and Mr. Richard B. Clevering, Zone Manager, Allison Division, General Motors Corporation.

General Echols, who prior to his retirement served in many vital Air Force posts including Chief of the Procurement Section and Chief of the Material Division, summarized his recommendations as follows:

"1. Prosecute research and development of new aircraft and aerial equipment as vigorously as is required to obtain and preserve leadership in the air. The Research and Development program should be closely interwoven into the procurement program.

"2. Maintain a minimum volume of procurement calculated to supply the necessary replacement airplanes to the air force in being so that it would be an effective combat force in an emergency with a minimum advance warning.

"Such a volume of replacement is not now being supplied.

"It should be a matter of national policy to make such replacements.

"3. Establish a long-term aircraft procurement program of at least five years' duration, with a mandatory replacement rate of 25% a year.

"4. Give greater consideration to air transportation in national defense planning.

"In view of the speed with which wars of the future will move, the mobilization plan must proceed upon the assumption of maximum utilization of air transportation.

"5. Enact more flexible procurement laws to permit Services to procure needed equipment with a minimum of delay and to effectuate the mobilization plan. Or continue current wartime powers until such a law can be drafted.

"6. Encourage and support an adequate industrial mobilization plan as the only eco-

Pay Study Report

The report of the Joint Pay Committee, comprising the recommendations of the several subcommittees which have been studying Service pay, will be in the hands of the Service Secretaries some time next week.

Following the addition of the recommendations and suggestions of the Service Secretaries the report will be forwarded to Secretary of Defense Forrestal.

The subcommittees which have been studying specific phases of the Service pay problem are the Analytical Subcommittee, the Subcommittee on Civilian Comparisons, the Subcommittee on Economics and the Retirement Subcommittee.

The Steering Committee, of which Vice Adm. William M. Fechteler, USN, is chairman, assigned various phases of

Permanent Navy Commissions

Officers of the Staff Corps of the Navy, with the exception of members of the Nurse Corps, are being assigned running mates in the line and will be permanently commissioned in the same grade, with same date of rank, as their running mates, it was announced this week.

Another ALNAV was issued to make it clear that the new dates of permanent and temporary commissions will not operate to entitle any officer to additional back pay or allowances. The texts follow:

Alnav 221

"Refer Alnavs 198, 200, 202, 203, 207, and subsequent Alnavs which may be issued on the date of permanent and temporary appointments of officers of the Navy and Marine Corps and the Reserve components. Dates of rank assigned in series of appointment Alnavs now being issued are for the purpose of establishing lineal precedence incident to transition from temporary to permanent ranks in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 381—Eighthieth Congress. Accordingly, no back pay and allowances accrue as a result of such appointments."

Army Plans Selection
Boards for New Lists

Plans are going forward in the Department of the Army for the formation of additional boards which will convene early next year for the selection of officers for the permanent grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

The Army's first selection board, to consider officers for promotion to the permanent grades of major general and brigadier general, met in Washington 9 Oct. The board for the selection of colonels will convene early in November, at which time the work of the general officer board may or may not have been completed. It is probable that the meeting of the two boards will overlap.

The board for the selection of lieutenant colonels will probably meet in January, followed at one month or six-week intervals by those for the selection of majors and captains.

Appointments in these lower grades are to be made 1 July 1948, or as soon after that date as possible, for the purpose of initially filling permanent grade requirements in each of the several promotion lists.

The Secretary of the Army has two systems open to him under the Officer Personnel Act. He may direct a selection board to consider officers in these grades in the order of their seniority as their names appear on the promotion list concerned, recommending those who are fully qualified for promotion and passing over those who are not qualified until a specified number of officers is obtained for each.

Under the alternative system the Secretary may furnish a selection board a list of officers to be considered for promotion to the grade concerned and direct the board to select and recommend from among these a specified number for promotion. The names of the recommended officers would then be placed on a recommended list (a separate list for each grade in each promotion list). The officers thus recommended would then be promoted on or after 1 July.

The President has the power to remove from the recommended list the name of any officer recommended for promotion by these selection boards, and may be entered by him on the recommended list for any lower grade above that in which the officer is holding appointment, or may be removed entirely by him.

Under the new law promotions to the grade of lieutenant colonel and below will continue under the old system until 31 Dec. 1947. During 1948 there will be no permanent promotions except those required to form the new promotion lists with distributions in grade as provided by the law, which will mean a large number of actual promotions to fill the grades. However, it will not be until after 1 Jan. 1949 that the new system, with selection boards to fill vacancies in the various grades as they occur, will go into formal operation. The forced eliminations because of failure to be promoted will not be effective until 1953.

General DeWitt Wins Suit

Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt, USA-Ret., won a victory of importance to the Army when the Supreme Court on 13 Oct., denied the Petition of Homer Glen Wilcox to review the decision against him of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Mr. Wilcox sued General DeWitt for heavy damages for excluding him from the Western Defense Command in 1943 as a potentially dangerous person. General DeWitt at the time was Commanding General of the Western Defense Command which was at "Military Area" under the Act of 21 March 1942.

At the trial before the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, Mr. Wilcox reduced his claim from $3,500 to $100, at which time the Civil Liberties Union began to take an extensive interest in the proceedings. Mr. Wilcox's attorney was Mr. A. L. Wirin of Los Angeles, the Civil Liberties Union representative in that section. Mr. Wirin had theretofore appeared in several cases representing Japanese excluded from the Western Defense Command by military order. On Mr. Wirin's entrance into the case the damages claimed were reduced, indicating it was to be a test case.

When the case reached the Supreme Court, Mr. Wilcox, in addition to being represented by Mr. Wirin, the Los Angeles representative of the Civil Liberties Union, likewise had as his attorneys the "big guns" of the Civil Liberties Union, Mr. Arthur Garfield Hayes, and Miss Nannette Dembitz who worked for the Department of Justice on the other side in some of the early Japanese exclusion cases.

The District Court, Judge Pierson Hall, awarded Mr. Wilcox a judgment in the amount of $100 holding that there was no power to exclude him from the Western Defense Command and that the only power was to put him in jail for refusing to leave that area. The Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit reversed the District Court and held, in effect, that it was naive to suppose Congress intended thus to tie the hands of the Military. In other words, the Court held that in time of war, in a vulnerable military area such as the Pacific Coast, it was absurd to suppose Congress intended that disloyal persons could remain with impunity in the area and that no power existed to take the obvious course of excluding them therefrom. The Supreme Court by denying review in the face of strenuous contentions by the Civil Liberties Union has, in effect, placed its approval upon the Court of Appeals' holding.

It is interesting to note that in a Reply Brief filed in the Supreme Court, Civil Liberties Union spokesmen contended the case had a substantial bearing upon suits filed against military personnel in Hawaii and elsewhere for damages growing out of martial law in Hawaii. These cases involve the question whether Army and Navy Officers who took potentially disloyal persons into custody under the circumstances of the Pearl Harbor disaster, can now be held personally to pay damages. The Department of Justice is defending these cases on the ground that acts done in good faith by military officers in time of war and in the face of National catastrophe do not expose them to suits by disgruntled individuals after the shooting is over.

The brief on behalf of General DeWitt in the Supreme Court was prepared by Mr. Frederick Bernays Wiener of the Solicitor General's Office formerly Colonel in the Judge Advocate General's Department.

Discusses Navy's Future

On the evening of 18 Oct., at the Quechean Club, Fall River, Mass., Admiral W. A. Spruance, President of the Naval War College, discussed "The Navy of the Past and how the Navy of the future will differ from it," as requested by the members of that Club.

The occasion was the annual Club Night of the Quechean Club. Lt. S. L. Bernard, aide to Admiral Spruance also attended.

KENNETH CLAIBORNE ROYALL

The First Secretary of the Army

KENNETH CLAIBORNE ROYALL, last Secretary of War and first Secretary of the Army, is a vast man with a vast capacity for work. Even in a crowd of big men, Mr. Royall would look big. He is six feet five inches tall, and weighs 250 pounds. The story is told that, while he was a brigadier general in the Army, he "pulled his rank" to get a place on a crowded plane departing from Casablanca.

"All right," said the harassed corporal in charge of loading to an equally harassed crew, "take a ton of freight off and put the General on!"

His energy is equal to his bulk, for all that he gives a visitor the impression that he is placid, easy-going and untroubled. He has a relaxed air even when he moves about, and his movements are unhurried. His brown eyes are gentle, and so is the infectious smile that comes easily and frequently to his face. And his deep-voiced speech in a drawl as soft and slow as a North Carolina afternoon, and the impression of placidity is complete.

Daily "Briefing"

His work and his record belie the impression. He is at his desk in The Pentagon by eight o'clock each morning, and in the course of a long day accomplishes a prodigious amount of work. He has a highly efficient memory, which clings to detailed facts as certainly as to matters of high policy, and he is said to "ride herd" on more varied and detailed matter of Army Administration, and to do it more consistently, than any recent Secretary of War.

Partly to ease this administrative task, partly to ready himself with exhaustive information for committee hearings at the next session of Congress, he has instituted a briefing system for himself. Almost every day, the chief of some Army branch, accompanied by his expert assistants, arrives at Mr. Royall's office to brief him thoroughly on current aspects of Army policy and administration problems.

This habit of work began early. He was graduated in 1917 from the Harvard University Law School. The Royall ancestry was distinguished, his family prominent, and a commission in the North Carolina National Guard offered a smooth route to military preferment. The law graduate elected instead to join the Army, and he got his lieutenant's commission in the Field Artillery by way of the training course at Fort Oglethorpe. Returning from overseas in 1919, he passed up the lucrative New York opportunities for an upper-bracket Harvard man (he had been associate editor of the Harvard Law Review 1915-17), preferring to take his chances in his hometown of Goldsboro. He netted something less than $1,500 his first year.

Success at Law

The struggle was not prolonged, however. He was an extraordinarily good trial lawyer—he is now generally rated one of the best trial lawyers in the United States—and his practice eventually was bringing him around $50,000 a year. The unusual aspect of those earnings is that they did not include any corporation retainer fees—he decided early in his practice not to take corporation retainers, but to collect fees only on cases as he handled them.

Six months after Pearl Harbor, Mr. Royall came back to the Army at the request of Under Secretary of War Patterson, who had been at Harvard with him. Commissioned a colonel, he became chief of the Army Service Forces legal section. A month later, he was appointed by President Roosevelt to defend the eight Nazi saboteurs landed on American shores by submarine. He admitted that "as a professional, I got a big kick" out of that assignment. He also established a pattern of shrewd and able defense accorded by a democratic nation even to accused enemies in time of war.

Later he became Deputy Fiscal Director ASF, was promoted to brigadier general, organized the office of fiscal director, and became a special assistant to Secretary of War Stimson for liaison with the Justice Department on war contract fraud cases and to prepare legislation and executive orders affecting procurement. For his services in these various capacities, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Demobilization

When Judge Patterson succeeded Mr. Stimson as Secretary in October 1945, General Royall was relieved from active duty to accept appointment by President Truman as Under Secretary. Termination of war contracts, disposal of surplus materials, and the Army's courts-martial system were his principal and continuing concerns, but he was Acting Secretary during Judge Patterson's absence when the "bring the boys home" fever precipitated a serious morale crisis, with soldiers overseas holding mass meetings and public demonstrations against the slowness of demobilization. The Army was freely criticized, but Mr. Royall did not accept the criticism placidly. He blamed the American public for the hysteria, and said that a philosophy of "me and my son, John" was flooding Congress with criticism "in spite of the most remarkable record of orderly demobilization in the history of the world."

He reacted with equally vigorous denial, after a personal inspection trip, to charges of "wanton destruction" of equipment by the Army overseas; and he defended the Army's system of courts-martial and military justice from what he termed "wild and inaccurate" attacks. Nevertheless, because he felt that wartime investigations might have been hasty and punishments unnecessarily harsh, he saw to it that clemency reviews (he was in charge of them) took place at a rate of more than 100 a day.

A firm believer in preparedness, and an ardent advocate of service unification, he went on record early in favor of a single Department of Defense to include a separate Air Force, and aimed at "maximum economy in men, material and money."

"The potential warlike strength of America," he once said, "is the greatest guarantee of tranquillity among the nations of the world."

All-Service Family

His friends like to call attention to the "service unification" existing in the Royall family during the war. The head of the house was in the Army; his brother, George Claiborne Royall, Jr., in the Air Force; his son, Kenneth C. Royall, Jr., in the Marine Corps; and his son-in-law, James E. Davis, in the Navy. The Secretary's wife is the former Margaret Best, to whom he was married in 1917.

Secretary Royall reads the newspapers and news magazines carefully and consistently, but aside from a vast amount of reading in connection with legal or business matters, is not addicted to books, either for relaxation or to satisfy any broad intellectual curiosity. In high school and at college—he received a Phi Beta Kappa key and the degree of Bachelor of Arts (mathematics major) at the University of North Carolina before he went to Harvard—Mr. Royall participated in debating and athletics. He plays what he calls a "fair" game of golf with considerable enthusiasm—an 85 is about his average.

"My hobby used to be golf," he confides.

Army and Navy Journal

"Now, I guess, it's golf and my grandchildren."

Guides Air Separation

Mr. Royall moved up to Secretary of War when Judge Patterson retired after passage of the bill unifying the military departments, and became Secretary of the Army—losing his cabinet status—when the unification was effected by executive order a month ago. He is credited by many associates for the ease and amity with which the Army and the Air Force accomplished their separation—he initiated and guided the studies on which the separation was based while, as Secretary of War, he still exercised control over both components. As to other aspects of change in the military establishment, Secretary Royall says, "it's too early yet to tell just how this thing is going to work out, but we're making progress."

He does not talk about it, but there is a lot of discussion currently about Secretary Royall as a candidate for Governor of North Carolina. Such a turn of events probably would not displease him, although he is keenly interested in his present task and enjoys his job and his contact with the Army. When he left active duty to become Under Secretary of War, he admitted "I'd kind of like to go back to my home town." Last week when he returned to Goldsboro to participate in its centennial celebration, 60,000 citizens turned out to welcome him.

Praises 1st Cavalry Division

TOKYO—In a letter received here, William H. Draper, Jr., Under Secretary of the Army, highly praised troops of the 1st Cavalry Division for the manner in which they are performing their occupation duties.

The letter, addressed to Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, states that "one of the outstanding experiences of my visit in Japan was the impressive review presented by your Division. It is most gratifying to me, as an American, to know that the finest traditions of the United States Army are so well upheld in Japan."

Praising "the high standards of military courtesy and discipline which were so evident during that review and which are displayed by the men of your Division both on and off duty throughout Tokyo," the letter adds that these "reflect the greatest credit upon you and your officers. It is obvious that your men are intensely proud of their organization and its history."

The Under Secretary concluded, "Please express to all of the officers and men of the 1st Cavalry Division my congratulations upon the outstanding manner in which they are performing their vital occupation duties."

Medal to Gen. Pershing

At the direction of President Truman, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, AUS, military aide to the President, yesterday presented to General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States, the medal awarded under the special act of Congress of 7 Aug. 1946. (The medal is reproduced on the first page of this issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.)

The Act specified that the medal was "in recognition of his peerless leadership, heroic achievements, and great military victories, as Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe in World War I, and for his gallant and unselfish devotion to the service of his country in his contribution to the preparation for, and the prosecution of, World War II."

Witnessing the ceremony, which was held in General Pershing's quarters at Walter Reed General Hospital, were his sister, Miss May Pershing; his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pershing; Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta; Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, Jr., Commanding the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital; Col. George E. Adamson, Military Secretary to the General of the Armies; and Col. John Callan O'Laughlin.

General Pershing expressed his deep appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him by the President and the Congress of the United States.

Troop Movement from Italy

Army personnel being transferred from Italy to the European Command will be joined as promptly as possible by families now in the United States and for whom transportation has been requested, the Department of the Army announced this week. Where dependents are in Italy transfers will be concurrent.

Families concerned will receive detailed instructions from the Army Headquarters nearest their homes.

Following is the criteria set up for the return to the United States or transfer to the European command of officer and enlisted personnel stationed in Italy:

"1. All enlisted personnel except those required for Trieste will be returned to the United States with the following exceptions:

"a. Those extending their enlistments or re-enlisting to EUCOM will be transferred to EUCOM.

"b. Small numbers of compassionate cases will be transferred to the Graves Registration Service in Paris or EUCOM.

"c. The overall total in a and b will not exceed 1,000.

"2. All officers except nurses who have one year or more effective overseas service will be reassigned to EUCOM.

"3. All nurses who have six months or more effective overseas service will be reassigned to EUCOM."

Gen. Henry Honored by President

At a White House ceremony 10 Oct., President Truman presented a scroll to Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, USA Ret., former Chief of Cavalry, upon the occasion of his second retirement from active duty after over 50 years service. Present at the ceremony were Secretary of War Royall and General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, US Army.

General Henry was recalled to active duty six years ago after having retired for age. Five years ago he was named chairman of the Joint Mexican-United States Defense Commission and senior Army member of the Joint Board of Defense.

General Henry has also served as superintendent of the US Military Academy.

Following is the text of the scroll presented General Henry by the President:

GUY VERNON HENRY

It is a genuine pleasure to sign this special testimonial of the admiration of your host of Army comrades.

You are one of the select few who have devoted more than fifty years of active military service to the defense of the United States of America and to the ideals of freedom and justice for which this country stands.

Born in an Army frontier fort, son of an illustrious soldier, you have exemplified by distinguished accomplishments in positions of great responsibility, too numerous to recount here, all that is best in a public servant of the highest type.

Salute to a great and loyal soldier.

Retired Officer Ruling

In an opinion affecting the appearance of retired Army officers as counsel before Army retiring boards, the Attorney General states that such appearance constitutes prosecution of a claim against the United States, which is denied such officers under the Criminal Code.

Excerpts from the opinion are quoted in Department of the Army Circular No. 14, which also states:

"In response to requests for opinion as to whether proposed activities of retired officers of the Army are prescribed, the Department of the Army has consistently stated that the interpretation and enforcement of Federal criminal statutes are functions of the Department of Justice and the Federal courts and that authoritative rulings thereon cannot be made by any agency of the Department of the Army."

Gen. Eisenhower Repudiates Clubs

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, USA, Chief, Public Information Division, Department of the Army, 16 Oct. issued the following statement to the press. The statement had been approved by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff of the Army:

"General Eisenhower's attitude respecting political gossip is exactly that as expressed to press representatives Sept. 10. He neither seeks nor desires political office and anyone who purports to represent him differently is mistaken. He deprecates the formation of clubs and other organizations that seek to place his name before the public in connection with political purposes and urges that individuals do not spend their time and money in their support. In no case has he had any prior knowledge of such purpose nor has his consent or approval ever been requested. Such consent would have been emphatically withheld."

Military Position of USSR

The official pamphlet "Armed Forces Talk," distributed by the Department of the Army to commanders for use in informing their troops, states that the Soviet Union could launch an attack in nearly any direction.

The current issue of the pamphlet, No. 197, entitled "Geopolitics of the Soviet Union," says:

"The size and climate of the Soviet Union are generally favorable to the Russians in a military sense. . . . The huge land base is favorable to the Soviets offensively. They could prepare an attack in almost any direction, toward Europe, China, or by air across the Polar regions."

3 simple steps to speed your paper work

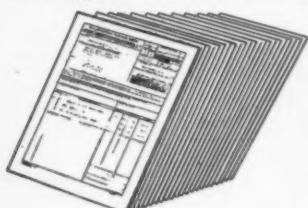

IThe standard War Department form is already die-pressed into the Mimeograph brand stencil sheets.

2 All your typists do is add the fill-in material by typewriter to the die-impressed stencil.

3 Then the completed form and variable information are produced together in one operation on blank paper stock by the Mimeograph brand duplicator, as shown below.

You don't have to wait for pre-printed forms. One proofreading is enough—for all copies are identical. And all copies are easy to read, clear, black-and-white—won't fade even with hard handling.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

102d Anniversary of USNA

The following message from Secretary of the Navy Sullivan was published to the Brigade of Midshipmen, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., by the Battalion Adjutants at noon meal formation 10 Oct.:

"My dear Admiral Holloway:

"On the one-hundred second anniversary of the United States Naval Academy, I extend my sincere greetings to members of the faculty, the staff, and the Midshipmen.

"During the past century the Academy has grown from a small class of midshipmen to the most celebrated institution of its kind in the world. Academy graduates have served brilliantly in five wars, and have distinguished themselves in outstanding military and civilian careers.

"Americans today take pride in the Naval Academy's heroic tradition, and in its invaluable contribution to the organization of the United States Navy and the life of the American nation.

Sincerely,

John L. Sullivan."

Present at the ceremony were Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Superintendent of the Academy, and Capt. Frank T. Ward, Commandant of Midshipmen. A special prayer was offered by Chaplain Everett P. Wuebbens.

Nylon Pontoons for Ship Salvage

Collapsible pontoons designed to lift as much as 40 tons each will soon be the latest in ship salvage equipment. The pontoons, made of rubberized nylon, were first used successfully for ship salvage at Bikini following the 1946 bomb blast. They are hollow tear-shaped structures which can be collapsed and attached to sunken submarines and other vessels and then inflated to provide necessary buoyancy for surfacing the ship.

New models now being manufactured for experimental purposes will lift 15, 25, and 40 tons, respectively. The 25-ton pontoon can be used in triple tandem to provide lifting power for 75 tons of deadweight. Enough of the nylon models can be attached to a sunken submarine to raise 950 tons of deadweight, a Bureau of Ships designer estimated. The balance of the necessary buoyancy is provided by pumping out water-tight compartments in the ship.

Navy Air in Maneuvers

Skyraiders, newest dive bomber developed for the Navy's carrier-based air arm, will form part of the protective umbrella under which troops and tanks of the Fourth Army will thrust ashore next month at the Panama City, Fla., area is wrested from the "enemy" in Exercise Seminole.

Fifty of these planes, along with 60 of the more familiar Corsair fighters, will comprise Naval Air Group Three, to be based on Pensacola Naval Air Station while simulating carrier-borne attackers. Marine Air Group Fourteen, from Cherry Point, N. C., will base its 70 Corsairs at the same station as the two groups join with US Air Force jet fighter and light bombardment units in providing cover for the mock landing.

Navy Physical Exams

For the annual physical examination in Washington, D. C., officers of the Navy of the rank of Commander and above, and officer of the Marine Corps of the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and above, will be examined at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., instead of the Naval Dispensary, Navy Department. Officers of the Navy of the rank of Lieutenant Commander and below, and officers of the Marine Corps of the rank of Major and below, will be examined at the Naval Dispensary, Navy Department and the Arlington Annex Dispensary.

Each officer to be examined will make arrangements by telephone for appointment as follows:

At the Naval Dispensary, Navy Department, call Extension 4772.

Officers on duty in Arlington Annex, call Extension 71258.

At the Naval Medical Center, Dial 825-Extension 462.

Naval Aviators requiring physical examination will make arrangements by telephone for appointment at the Naval Air Station Dispensary, Anacostia, D. C. Dial 824-Extension 238.

Crash Crane for Carriers

A mobile crash crane for carrier use with nearly twice the lifting power of wartime models was recently put aboard the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt for tests. Officials expect it to result in speedier rescues of pilots and to make possible salvage of larger planes.

Lifting capacity of this newly-developed crane is 24,000 pounds, 10,000 more than that of the largest shipboard model used during the war. Navy designers report that it will be the first such crane to be operated entirely by electricity. Though larger than earlier models, it requires less stowage space when folded.

Whereas previous models were usable only on a carrier's flight deck, this completely mobile crane is equipped to lift a maximum of 13,000 pounds as far as 65 feet from the hangar deck or from over the side of the ship. It has a speed of 10 miles an hour.

Review Navy and Marine Discharges

As a result of cumulative changes in instructions affecting discharges from the Navy, approximately 340,000 former Navy and Marine Corps personnel who received other than honorable discharge certificates are eligible to have their records reviewed by the Navy Board of Review for Discharges and Dismissals.

The Review Board, set up under provisions of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, has reviewed approximately 14,000 discharges to date. In about 30 percent of the cases reviewed, the type of discharge was changed for the better by the Board. The Board is authorized to review all discharges from the Navy except those issued as a result of a General Court Martial.

Jet Fighters in Joint Maneuvers

New P-80B Shooting Star jet fighters, first tactical airplane to have an explosive safety device which will literally blow the pilot from his cockpit in emergency, will take part in Exercise Seminole, joint Armed Forces war-game to be held on the Florida Gulf Coast in early November.

The new jet plane will be flown by First Fighter Group pilots of the Tactical Air Command's Twelfth Air Force.

The pilot-ejector mechanism has been developed to overcome the possibility that terrific airblast would tear away parachutes of pilots forced to abandon jet planes flying at near supersonic speeds. It consists of a special seat, with attachments for pilot's arms and legs and a trigger to fire a powder charge. Both seat and pilot will be blown from the airplane when it is abandoned in flight. The pilot will then free himself from the seat apparatus, and release his parachute in the normal manner, when his speed is reduced to a safe point.

USAF Helicopter Rescue

The 10th Rescue Squadron of the Alaskan Air Command has made its second rescue of a civilian within the last few weeks, using an Air Force Sikorsky R-5 helicopter to remove Ed Chiveral, a stranded hunter, from the Alaskan wastelands. A search plane located the lost hunter and dropped food and a flare gun to use to attract the rescue helicopter.

1st Lt. Walter F. White, Ohio, pilot of the helicopter, made a landing in dangerous terrain filled with trees and stumps, picked up Chiveral, and flew him to Willow.

Crew members of the search plane which located Chiveral were: 1st Lt. J. S. Schifferer, pilot; 1st Lt. Willard D. Jenkins, co-pilot; 1st Lt. William B. Goris, navigator; and Sgt. William C. Jones, engineer.

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

Use 98% of Payload

Fairfield-Suisun, AAFld, Calif.—Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., commanding general of the Air Transport Command's Eastern Pacific Wing, has announced that 98 per cent of the available payload weight had been utilized between here and Hawaii on ATC's scheduled flights for September.

In making public the figures, General Old said that during the past month, 937,122 pounds of airlift were available and that 924,323 pounds were carried.

General Old also said that 1,841 passengers totaling 397,781 pounds were included in this figure of weight flown across the Pacific to Hawaii. The average payload of each of the Douglas C-54's was just a fraction more than 8,037 pounds. The general pointed out that the available payload varies from day to day as the time required to fly the long over-water flight changes with the winds aloft.

The Eastern Pacific Wing, a part of the ATC's Pacific Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Bob E. Nowland, originates four flights daily operating on a 7-day week schedule. Three of the four flights continue on west of Hawaii to the Far East.

The fourth flight is used as a shuttle to carry extra cargo and passengers to Hawaii so that planes flying west of there are able to utilize the full payload capacities of the planes. The increased payloads are made possible by a reduction in the quantity of fuel required for the shorter flight times between refueling points.

Gen. Stone to Wright Field

Maj. Gen. Charles B. Stone III, Deputy Commander to Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, Commanding General of the Air Defense Command with headquarters at Mitchel Field, L. I., will leave his command soon for an important assignment with the Air Materiel Command at Wright Field, Ohio.

Air Force Extension Courses

A new series of Air Force Extension courses for home study covering a broad field of Air Science and United States military tactics, are available to members of the military and civilian components of the Armed Forces.

These courses are designed to keep officers abreast of Air Force developments and changing military trends and to prepare them for promotion to higher grades.

Prepared especially for officers and enlisted men of the Air Reserve, the Air National Guard and for specially qualified civilians, the Extension School courses are published by the Air University.

Enrollment for the Extension home study courses is effected by completing War Department AGO Form 145, "Application for Enrollment," and forwarding it through Air Force channels to the appropriate area Air Force Extension School.

Applications of all Regular Air Force personnel, Air Reservists on extended active duty, and Air National Guardsmen are made through their unit commander. The commanders will endorse those applications to the appropriate Air Force Extension schools, indicating their approval or disapproval and detailing their reasons therefor.

Gens. Harmon, Hale Reassigned

Maj. Gen. Hubert R. Harmon, commanding general of the Caribbean Defense Command, has been assigned to duty as Senior Air Force Member, Military Staff Committee, United Nations. He succeeds General Joseph T. McNarney, who was recently appointed commanding general of the Air Materiel Command.

Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, commanding general of the Fourth Air Force, will replace General Harmon as commanding general of the Caribbean Air Command on or about 1 Nov. General Harmon has already reported at United States Air Force Headquarters for reassignment.

Rigid Tow Bar for Gliders

Wright Field, O.—Experiments now being conducted at Air Materiel Command Headquarters here are making it possible to tow gliders in weather which requires instrument flying. Feature of the tests is the use of a rigid metal bar instead of the conventional rope. This permits the two craft to keep direct contact and to operate as one unit.

According to Maj. F. J. Sweet, Chief of the Glider Unit at AMC, the basic design for the rigid glider tow was discovered in Nazi documents captured by the U. S. Air Force.

Technicians at Wright Field modified and perfected the original German design to produce the rigid tow bar now under test. The 48-inch metal bar has a universal joint at one end and a 12-inch ball retained in a housing of brake lining at the other end. The ball housing is rigidly attached to the tail of a Curtiss C-46 in the same position in which the conventional rope tow release is normally supported.

Fifth Air Force Stage Show

Kyoto—A group of aircraft from 5th Air Force staged an aerial demonstration over Kyoto 2 Oct., to familiarize I Corps Occupation forces and the Japanese with the most modern types of aircraft. The Daiken Building, where I Corps Headquarters is located, served as a mock target and pylon for the air procession which encircled the structure three times.

Two P-80 Shooting Star jet fighter planes led the parade, passing over the target at 550 miles per hour. A B-29 Super-Fortress flew over next, followed by a third ensemble consisting of a P-51 Mustang fighter plane, a twin-engined P-61 Black Widow pursuit plane, and an A-26 Marauder attack plane. The final formation was composed of a twin-engined C-46 transport craft, a B-17 Flying Fortress with a life boat attachment for sea rescue operation, and two AT-6 advance pilot training planes.

342d Bomb Squadron

Airplane No. 302, a B-29 of the 342d Bomb Squadron, is the most travelled aircraft of the 97th Bomb Group at Smoky Hill (Kans.) air field.

Lt. William W. Culbertson whose crew was assigned 302 last January, took it on flights to South America in February and March, Germany in July, Japan in August, and was the first 15th Air Force plane to land at Guam. Ports of call were Puerto Rico; Belem, Brazil; Natal, Brazil; Montevideo, Uruguay; British Guiana; Panama Canal; Labrador; Giebelstadt, Germany; Azores; Bermuda; Oahu, Hawaii; Kwajalein; Guam; Japan and Alaska.

Lieutenant Culbertson and his crew have flown this airplane 467 hours since January. On all these flights M/Sgt. James W. Jones, who served with the 20th Air Force at Tinian, and his maintenance crew were responsible for its mechanical operation. None of the trips were delayed because of maintenance.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1947

"We must paraphrase our talk about waging war. Why should we not wage peace?"—FLEET ADMIRAL ERNEST J. KING.

FLEET ADMIRAL Chester W. Nimitz, acknowledged to be one of the great naval leaders of all time, will relinquish the post of Chief of Naval Operations on 17 December and pass to the inactive list. From the home he will establish near a California post, he will overlook the vast Pacific from which his created and coordinated task forces wiped out the Japanese Navy and safeguarded the transports and the landings of the Armies and supplies they carried, and thus by combined operations, compelled the abject surrender of the powerful Japanese Empire. Because of his modesty, his distaste for publicity, the country does not realize the full extent of the monumental service he rendered in a war of global magnitude. Better informed, our naval, military and air experts appreciate that the achievements of his forces exercised a powerful influence upon the victories we won in the African and European theaters. When he assumed control at Pearl Harbor, he found the pathetic remnants of what once had been a great Fleet, and amongst the battleships on the bottom at the base were those of the first division which he had commanded in peacetime days. To mention a few of the duties he had to discharge immediately, it was necessary for him to act in conjunction with the commander of the available troops to safeguard the island from expected attack by a Japanese landing force, to reorganize what was left of the Fleet, to salvage the sunken and stranded ships and protect them en route to California ports where they could be repaired to fight again, to create a Staff to make defensive and eventually offensive plans, and, above all, to lift the morale of the surviving officers and men almost destroyed by the bloody experience through which they had passed. All these things he did. Within six weeks of his assumption of command on 31 December 1941, he encouraged his men and our people, and confounded the Japanese by an air raid on the Gilbert and Marshall Islands. It was necessary for him to fight first a defensive, then a counter offensive and finally an offensive campaign, and by his skillful use of the task forces he organized, he carried the main lines of warfare away from our shores and to the shores of the enemy. Having had submarine as well as cruiser and battleship experience and full understanding of the value of the air, he had a grasp on the whole situation which only genius could enable. His mind was open to innovations in the field of ships and weapons and their use. He was an ardent believer in calculated risks, for example when he brought the carrier Yorktown from the Coral Sea to the Midway area where the decisive battle of the war occurred. His historic communiqué No. 3, issued while that battle was in its final stages, told our citizens they "can now rejoice that a momentous victory is in the making," and that Pearl Harbor had been "partially avenged." From then on his task forces moved from success to success, and they were so directed that the Japanese Admiralty believed them more numerous than they really were, for they found them everywhere. So with the laurels which deservedly are his, Admiral Nimitz passes to the inactive list. He will be available for duty solely of a naval character be it understood, should our need require it, and on this note of devotion to his country, this great patriot and leader feels he leaves our security in the hands of those he regards as competent successors.

THE proposal to set up a pension system for the widows of all Regular career personnel, which Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, USN, has put before the joint study group he heads, holds possibilities of correcting an injustice which has existed throughout the history of the U. S. Armed Forces. Because of the multiplicity of pension laws, there is a general belief, and it probably extends to many members of Congress, that the Government always provides for the widows and minor children of those who have devoted their lives to the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard. Such is far from the truth. The laws are many and complex, but the fact is the one group which will form a large part of our post war Regular Establishments will be without protection for their dependents if they die natural deaths. That group consists of those who entered the Regular services after World War I and who served through World War II without suffering injuries or incurring diseases to which their subsequent deaths may be attributed. There are laws under which pensions automatically accrue to dependents of those who served minimum periods in the Spanish-American, Philippine Insurrection, Boxer Rebellion, and earlier wars. For widows of veterans who served at least 90 days in World War I, Congress has established a pension system, but here no payments are granted if the widow has an outside income of more than $1,000 or of more than $2,500 if there are minor children. Those who served in World War II can look for no help for their bereaved dependents under the war pension act unless their death be due to injuries or disease suffered during the war period. All of these laws were enacted for special groups and were sponsored by organizations of such veterans. The only law applicable solely to the regular services is that providing a $38-a-month pension to the widows of those Regulars whose death may be caused by injury or disability directly due to active service. Admiral Fechteler believes, as the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has long contended, that the morale and efficiency of the Regular establishments would be higher if everyone knew that his widow and children would be provided for upon his death, regardless of the cause. It is his thought that a system could be worked out whereby Regular personnel would contribute a fixed portion of their income toward the security of their dependents. If such a plan be recommended it should be broad enough to cover all those service widows not now receiving pensions under other laws, as well as the families of those officers now retired or who will be retired before the plan goes into effect.

The story is told of the Kentucky colonel who had an argument with the devil. The devil said that no one had a perfect memory. But the colonel maintained that there was an Indian on his plantation who never forgot anything.

The colonel agreed to forfeit his soul to the devil if the Indian ever forgot anything.

The devil went up to the Indian and said: "Do you like eggs?"

The Indian replied, "Yes!" The devil went away.

Twenty years later the colonel died. The devil thought, "here's my chance." He came back to the earth and presented himself to the Indian. Raising his hand, he gave the tribal salutation, "How." Quick as a wink the Indian replied, "Fried."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The growing international tension resulting from the struggle between the United States and Soviet Russia is expected to produce a major shift in Communist foreign policy in the not too distant future. The deadlock of cross-purposes is rapidly reaching a stage at which the Reds must decide between a complete rupture with the democratic world, or a show at least of cooperation; that is, a withdrawal of the Soviet bloc from the United Nations, or dropping (or at any rate softening radically) the virulent and vicious anti-U. S. propaganda line.

Since abandonment of U. N. would mean not only the loss of the Kremlin's most valuable single sounding board for world broadcast of its ideas, but also imply such a threat to world security as to force the balance of the world into a solid coalition against Russia, the second alternative seems more likely to be adopted by the Kremlin gang. A sharp departure from the present attacks on the U. S. no doubt would be accompanied by the window-dressing of a shakeup of key men in Moscow. It would not mean abandonment of any long-range Communist ambitions, merely a Red confession that Russia fears a clear-cut contest at present, and prefers to sabotage the world's peace efforts less openly while building strength for a later challenge.

Straws in this faint wind of international outlook are the astonishing U. S.-Soviet agreement on the Palestine question, and the rapid compromise of conflicting opinions at the London conference on disposition of former Italian colonies.

The U. S. statement to the U. N. on Palestine was a carefully, even cautiously, worded endorsement of the partition into separate Jewish and Arab states recommended by a majority of the special U. N. Commission. To prevent warfare between Jews and Arabs, the U. S. recommended a special constabulary or police force, to be recruited internationally by U. N. on a volunteer basis—a reflection of double warnings received by President Truman against use of regular U. S. troops in Palestine: from the Joint Chiefs of Staff that it would be militarily and strategically unsound, from political leaders that it would be politically dangerous.

Three days later the Soviet statement also approving partition, in view of the present impossibility of a single bi-national state on a basis of Arab-Jewish agreement, was read to the Assembly by Semyon K. Tsarapkin, Charge d'Affaires in Washington. His statement was direct and straightforward, completely free of the inflammatory phrases which have marked most recent Russian official pronouncements. On details, the Russians reserved decision. It would be easy to build too much hope on the basis of this agreement without name-calling on one of the world's most explosive issues; and the suggestion has been made that the Reds were willing to alienate the Arabs, if only to get British troops out of the Middle East as rapidly as possible.

Jewish organizations were understandably elated by the big power agreement on partition, and Arab groups just as understandably bitter. Threats of an Arab military mobilization, and possibly of economic sanctions against the western nations, have been emanating from an Arab League Council meeting in Lebanon. Observers have been unable to find the reported massing of Arab troops on the Palestine border, however, and some experts have declared flatly that the Arab states do not possess any respectable military force. Isolated instances of terrorism are another matter, and the latest episode was the explosion of an Arab bomb in the American Consulate General in Jerusalem.

When it convened a few days ago, the meeting of Foreign Ministers' Deputies in London appeared headed as straight for Deadlock Shoals as any other Big Four group considering peace settlements. Bars to prompt action on disposition of the former Italian colonies of Libya, Eritrea and Somaliland evaporated rapidly, however, as the U. S. dropped its demand that all interested nations be consulted, accepting the Soviet view that the Big Four alone should decide the makeup of the Commission of Inquiry to be sent to the colonies; and the Reds in turn dropped their demand for two commissions, accepting the American position that a single group was sufficient. The delegates then got together smoothly on the scope of the proposed commission.

In respect of the Greek question, the U. S. and Russia were still at loggerheads before the U. N. The consistent victories of the U. S. in the General Assembly's Political and Security Committee have been accompanied by the familiar stream of vituperation from Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky, and a threat to boycott the proposed U. N. Commission to maintain a border watch. The committee rejected Mr. Vishinsky's resolution to declare the Greek government responsible for the border troubles, and to order all foreign troops and military assistance withdrawn. It was offered as a substitute for the U. S. resolution, previously approved by the committee, to set up the border watch and ask Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria not to help the Greek insurgents (a clause accusing the Soviet satellites of guilt was withdrawn by the U. S.). In Greece, the troubles of Premier Sophoulis' government were increased by the threat of Napoleon Zervas, former cabinet member and wartime leader of the right-wing resistance movement, to withdraw his support of the government, reconstitute his own guerrilla forces, and start his own war of extermination against the Communist-aided insurgents.

The familiar Communist tactics were apparent in two more localities in Europe: the Austrian Treaty Commission ended five months of negotiation in Vienna in complete deadlock, passing the task of an Austrian peace treaty back to the scheduled November meeting of Foreign Ministers in London; and the Kremlin, after ignoring since August a French request for Russian wheat in exchange for French manufactures, came forward on the eve of important municipal elections in France with an offer to put forward unspecified amounts of grain for trading purposes.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov asked Secretary of State Marshall for a reply to the Communist proposal that both U. S. and Red troops be withdrawn from Korea early next year, but—however the formal reply to the Kremlin may be worded—the U. S. will insist on referring the whole question of Korean independence to the U. N. General Assembly, and treating the withdrawal of troops as merely part of a general settlement. Skeptical American officials view the Soviet evacuation proposal as a gesture to forestall reference of the Korean question to the Assembly, and—if it should be accepted—as a device permitting the Sovietized northern zone of Korea simply to take over the southern zone when the troops were pulled out. It seemed likely that the U. S. would propose a general election in Korea, to be carried out under supervision of a U. N. commission, which would then act in an advisory capacity to a provisional Korean government. Troop withdrawal still would be a matter for bi-lateral agreement of the U. S. and Russia, but presumably would be undertaken only after consultation with the proposed provisional government.

Joint Air Force-Army Circulars—Overlapping functions, especially in personnel matters of the Air Force and Army, will necessitate the establishment of a new series of circulars to be issued jointly. One of the first of these will be the joint directive now in preparation and scheduled to appear in a few weeks concerning the joint warrant officer procurement program of the two Services.

Rent Former Naval Air Station Sites—Land and building facilities of inactivated Naval air stations throughout the country are being rented to individuals, colleges, municipalities and county governments under a program designed to keep the stations ready for quick activation in the event of an emergency. Although a large number of the wartime Navy air fields are being used as public airports by cities, counties and private companies, others are being subjected to a wide variety of civilian uses.

At the former Naval Air Station, Brunswick, Me., the University of Maine and Bowdoin College have divided the barracks and converted them into dormitories for GI students. In addition, the University of Maine is using a former barracks shower room for a chemistry laboratory, and is using another barracks as a lecture hall, while Bowdoin College has taken over a section of the land for a students' skeet and machine-gun range. The remainder of the land furnishes the town of Brunswick with an airport, which in turn is used by a flying school and a Naval Reserve volunteer aviation unit.

The College of Arts and Industries, Kingsville, Texas, is using buildings, shops, barracks and other buildings of the Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Kingsville; while the University of Miami has made classrooms, dormitories and workshops from facilities available at the former Naval Air Station (Lighter than Air), Richmond, Fla.

Franklin County, Wash., is using the dispensary of the Naval Air Station, Pasco, Wash., as a county hospital; and Santa Rosa Junior College, Calif., has fitted out two barracks at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Santa Rosa, as dormitories.

Quartermaster Corps—The functions of research and development performed by the Fuels and Lubricants Branch were transferred from Supply Division to Research and Development Branch, Military Planning Division, effective 10 Oct.

Dr. Jesse H. White is retiring from his position as executive assistant to the commanding officer, QM Food and Container Institute at Chicago, after 42 years of Government service. A retired lieutenant colonel, Dr. White developed the method of boning, freezing, and packing meat which is believed to have saved the Government at least $8,000,000 a year in transportation costs alone during the war, as well as 60 per cent of refrigerated shipping space.

Response to letters of inquiry sent next of kin of World War II dead reveals that out of more than 57,000 replies, 31 per cent wish to have the remains of their loved ones buried overseas, 54 per cent have designated burial in a private cemetery in the United States and 15 per cent have asked to have remains interred in National Cemeteries in this country.

Assignment of 1st Lt. Irvin E. Liener to the staff of the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, Chicago, has been announced by Col. Charles S. Lawrence, Commanding Officer and Mr. George Gelman, Technical Director. In connection with his duties in the Rations Planning Office of the Institute, Lieutenant Liener will engage in nutritional studies on military rations.

J., and the New York Port of Embarkation 9-10 Oct., to discuss means of reducing the quantity of clothing and equipment carried by individual soldiers from replacement training centers to their overseas destinations.

Two officers have recently arrived from Ft. Hamilton, N. Y., for permanent assignments to Hq AGF. They are Lt. Col. Thomas D. Gillis, Cav., and Lt. Col. Herbert I. Stern, FA. Both officers have been assigned to the G-4 Section.

Two officers have recently been relieved from permanent duty with Hq AGF. They are Col. William L. McNamee, CAC, Developments Sec., transferred to the OC/S, USA, Washington, D. C., and Lt. Col. Thomas M. Crawford, FA, G-3 Sec., to attend L'Ecole D'Etat-Major, Paris, France.

Dowling of the Navy Medical Corps has recently retired from active service with the Navy in order to accept a position with the American Red Cross as Deputy Administrator to Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, who heads their National Whole Blood Program. For the past two years Captain Dowling was the Head of the General Medicine Branch of the Research Division of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy Department. Captain Dowling has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal as well as the British Award of Officer of the Military Division of the Order of the British Empire. He resides with his family at 44 Woodmount Road, Alexandria, Va.

Another Department of the Army Circular, No. 11, deals with efficiency reports of Officers Reserve Corps officers on short tours of active duty.

The Army Extension Course program is now well under way with nearly 150 courses available to qualified personnel. Established in 1948, the program is primarily designed to provide a systematic course of home study for the members of the Organized Reserve Corps and the National Guard who desire to keep prepared for wartime assignments and duties by keeping abreast of the latest in military developments. Applicants for enrollment who are assigned to Reserve or National Guard units should apply to unit commanders or instructors. Applicants not assigned to units should apply directly to the Army commander in the local Army area.

National Guard—The National Guard enlisted 7,740 men during the week ending 4 Oct., making a total of 22,169 who have enlisted since 16 Sept., the beginning of the nationwide recruiting campaign.

Oklahoma became the first to exceed its quota by enlisting 383 men during the week ending 4 Oct. for a total of 1,012 during the first three weeks. Its quota was 1,828 for the entire campaign. Four other states have recruited over 1,000 men during the period 16 Sept. to 4 Oct. inclusive. They are:

The Medical Section of the 3d Battalion, stationed at St. Clair, and the Anti-Tank Company, St. Louis, were the final units to be granted recognition.

Three weeks of National Guard recruiting in Indiana discloses that Company A, 151st Infantry, still leads the field. This New Castle unit has been the leader since the drive started.

In Michigan the strength of the National Guard was boosted to 4,646 with the addition of 207 recruits at the end of the third week of the drive.

Fourteen Signal Corps officers have been enrolled in the new five months course in the Signal Supply School at Camp Holabird, Md. The purpose of the School is to train selected Regular Army officers, primarily of company grade, for duty in connection with procurement and distribution.

Women's Army Corps—The 8225th WAC Battalion paraded in honor of Col. Mary A. Hallaren, WAC Director 27 Sept., on the Imperial Palace Plaza in Tokyo. The reviewing party included Colonel Hallaren, Brig. Gen. R. E. Starr, Commanding General Hq & Sv Group, GHQ; Maj. Pauline V. Linch, FEC WAC Staff Director; and Maj. Mary K. Moynahan, new commander of the 8225th WAC Battalion. Leading the more than 400 Wacs were the following officers: Acting Adjutant, 1st Lt. Eve K. Evans, Commanding officer; Headquarters Company, Capt. Roberta M. Patton, with 1st Lt. Maurine Brinegar, as platoon commander; CO, A Company, Capt. Martha E. Saxon, with Capt. Lane Carlson as platoon commander; CO, B Company, Capt. Lorraine E. Bowers, with Capt. Harriet Fivenson, as platoon commander.

Naval Air Transport—The Chief of The Bureau of Aeronautics, in a recent letter to the C.O. of VR-5 compliments that squadron for the assistance it has afforded the Bureau in "the evaluation of navigational radar", and adds: "it is hoped that VR-5 will continue to submit reports and suggestions in the future." This is another indication of the close cooperation existing between NATS and the Bureau of Aeronautics in the investigation and development of the use of airborne radar as a navigational aid as well as a means by which weather fronts, thunderstorms, and severe icing conditions may be avoided."

The VR-2 schedule has been reduced from six round trips per week to four between Alameda and Honolulu, effective 5 Oct. This was necessitated, along with reductions in schedules of other NATS Squadrons, as a result of personnel losses.

Navy Dental Corps—Eight former Naval Reserve dental officers have transferred to the Dental Corps of the Regular Navy. These officers are: Lt. Comdr. L. S. Kennedy (DC), USN, stationed at the U. S. Marine Corps Base, San Diego, Calif.; Lt. Comdr. J. W. Miller (DC), USN, stationed at the U. S. Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.; Lt. Comdr. H. P. Gleistan (DC), USN, under orders to Naval Operating Base, Subic Bay, P. I.; Lt. E. C. Mitchell (DC), USN, under orders to the U. S. Naval Station, Tutuila, Samoa; Lt. J. C. Stoopack (DC), USN, now unassigned; Lt. G. W. Gray (DC), USN, stationed at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.; Lt. N. W. Rupp (DC), USN, stationed at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.; and Lt. (jg) J. J. McCrory (DC), USN, on duty aboard the USS Yellowstone.

Capt. Frank K. Sullivan (DC), USN, has been ordered to the retired list as of 1 Oct. 1947 and Capt. Clark E. Morrow (DC), USN, Lt. Comdr. M. L. Kubalek (DC), USN, are under orders awaiting action by the Naval Retiring Board.

Illinois Armory Board Case

An appeal from the Circuit Court of Cook County, Ill., is being heard in the Supreme Court of Illinois in the suit of John S. Loomis, Jr., vs. Roy D. Keehn, chairman of the Illinois Armory Board, other members of the board and The Adjutant General of the State of Illinois.

The question presented is the constitutionality of the Armory Board Act, which authorizes the sale of bonds to finance the building of armories. The Supreme Court is being urged to reverse the decision of the trial court and to issue an injunction against the issuance of the bonds mentioned.

Women's Army Corps

to provide a nucleus of women in the Regular Army organized for immediate expansion in case of national emergency; (2) to find out how and where women can best be used before an emergency arises; (3) to provide for greater economy in the use of all personnel by using women in jobs for which they are better suited than men, and (4) to assist in filling the Army's personnel requirements.

To date, only one modification of those policies is planned, and that is in the order in which they are listed. Due to current recruiting shortages, the last shall be first—temporarily. Immediate plans provide that priority will be given to training Regular Army Wacs for, and assigning them to, those occupational specialties in which the most acute shortages occur and which women can fill to advantage. Recently, due to a critical shortage of trained infantrymen, combat men holding military desk jobs were allowed to be reassigned to the Infantry. With Wacs replacing soldiers in many of the jobs in the Medical Corps, finance, administration, supply, transportation, etc., thousands of soldiers will be available for field training in the combat arms.

Filling critical personnel shortages emphasizes, rather than supplants, the primary purpose of the establishment of a permanent Women's Army Corps—to provide a nucleus of women in the Regular Army organized for immediate expansion in case of a national emergency. Every sound security program should include a nucleus of each type of unit needed in mobilization. Hence, for maximum efficiency, every Corps within the Army which would use women in a national emergency, must maintain a small unit of women ready for conversion and expansion when that emergency arises. Top priority in the long range plans, highly selective standards in the choice of key personnel, leadership courses for women, as well as specialist training, will be combined to develop competent administrative personnel to staff such units.

Experimentation—"to find how and where women can best be used before an emergency arises"—is next in the order of objectives. War permits no time for research in the classification and assignment fields. Peace offers an opportunity for exploration of the job fields to which the skills and aptitudes of women are adaptable. The availability of women in the Regular Army presents a permanent opportunity for practical, on-the-job application within the Army's research and development program.

"Greater economy in the use of all personnel" thus becomes, not so much an objective, as a result of such personnel management.

What will be the immediate effect of this Bill's passage? As soon as the "Hill" gives the green light, the processing of applications of WAC personnel (AUS) for enlistment in Regular Army will begin; boards will be appointed to screen Women's Army Corps candidates for Regular Army commission. WAC officers and WAC non-commissioned officers, earmarked for their recruiting qualifications, will attend The Adjutant General's Recruiters' School.

The recruitment of ex-WAC and civilian personnel will start approximately ninety days after passage of the legislation. At the same time, The Adjutant General will open the Women's Army Corps Training Center at Camp Lee, Virginia. Courses will include Basic Training, Officers' Candidate School, Leadership Courses for non-commissioned officers and Refresher Courses for officers. Plans also include the training of Wacs to serve with the Air Force until legislation providing for Women in the Air Force is efrian Affairs. From 1931 to 1933 he was Judge Advocate General of the Army.

Appointed Governor of Puerto Rico in 1934, shortly after his retirement from the Army with the rank of major general, he served for more than five years.

During his tenure he reorganized the island's police force, brought about establishment of a workmen's compensation law, started a campaign to establish Puerto Rico as a tourist resort, and settled a shipping strike (1937).

A strong advocate of Puerto Rican Statehood, General Winship often expressed the hope that he would live long enough to see the island "enjoy full membership in the Union."

After his term of service ended in 1939, he retired, but was recalled to duty with the Army in the recent war, and named Coordinator of the Inter-American Defense Board. He retired finally in 1944.

General Winship held the Pan-American Society's gold award for his work on inter-American relations.

Mrs. Russell C. Langdon

Mrs. Russell C. Langdon, wife of Brig. Gen. Russell C. Langdon, USA-Ret., and mother of Comdr. Edward-Semple Moale, USNR, passed away at her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., 15 Oct., after a very short illness.

For 25 years Mrs. Langdon had been president of The Society of Sponsors, United States Navy. This organization is composed exclusively of women who have served as the sponsors of fighting ships of the Navy at their launchings. It has been in close touch with the Navy Department in its publicity contacts and has been useful to the Navy in many other ways. One of its activities which was started at the instance of Mrs. Langdon is the paying of expenses in whole or in part of worthy sons of deceased Naval officers during the period of their preparation for entrance to the United States Naval Academy. Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, upon hearing of the death of Mrs. Langdon, expressed his sympathy to General Langdon and stated: "As President of the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy, Mrs. Langdon has for twenty-five years rendered outstanding service to that Society and to the Navy. Her loss will be keenly felt by all."

During many years past, Mrs. Langdon has also been the president of the Churchwomen's League for Patriotic Service which has as its aim the furnishing of ecclesiastical equipment to chaplains in all of the armed forces. In 1933 a chapel was built and equipped by this league at Plattsburgh Barracks, New York and presented to the Army in memory of per-

Financial Digest

A report of the United States Treasury discloses that its gold holdings passed the $22 billion mark last week, the highest since 17 Nov. 1943.

The Federal Reserve System revealed the latest addition to the nation's gold holdings when it listed an increase of $137 million in the Treasury holdings shown in its statement of banking statistics for the week ending 8 Oct. Presumably a great part of the increase was due to the recent purchase of gold by this country from Great Britain.

Among other changes in monetary statistics reflected by the report was an increase of $100 million in excess reserves of all member banks, bringing the total to $1,140 million. Most of the increase was in New York City, where member banks of the Federal Reserve System tabulated a $60 million increase in excess funds, reaching at total of $140 million.

Member banks reported that their total loans and investments fell by $209 million. All the losses were on the investment side, it was indicated, as the banks sold Treasury securities to produce funds to meet the drain on demand deposits. Loans, however, were up $46 million. Of this amount $34 million was accounted for by new industrial, commercial and agricultural advances. Such advances increased total business borrowing to over $4.7 billion. New commitments against tobacco, vegetable oils, loans to small business and to small finance companies accounted largely for the increase.

sonnel from that post, including its training camps who took active part in World War I.

Mrs. Langdon was the eldest daughter of the late Hon. Eugene Semple, the last territorial governor of Washington. Her first husband was the late Edward Moale, USN, who died in 1903.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her son Comdr. Edward-Semple Moale and her sister Mrs. Frederick E. Swanstrom of Seattle, Wash.

Funeral services were held at St. Thomas Church, 5th Avenue and 53rd Street, New York City, 16 Oct. Interment took place the next day at the Military Academy Cemetery, West Point, N. Y. —

Merchant Marine

Bids for the construction of five American President Line vessels were opened early this month by the Maritime Commission. The five new ships, of 11,250 gross tons, and their two slightly larger companion vessels for the trans-Pacific passenger service, are the only new passenger ships building or scheduled currently in the United States. The new ships will be 536 feet long and are known as the V-2000 type. The Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. was low bidder on four.

A Washington news agency has stated that a review of the mechanics of the Maritime Commission's charter policy is contemplated. It was intimated that removal of the present 60-day minimum charter period is under consideration.

Commo. Robert C. Lee, Executive Vice President, Moore-McCormack Lines, addressing a class of 125 cadet midshipmen at the New York State Maritime Academy, Fort Schuyler, N. Y., 8 Oct., said that the American Merchant Marine will play a particularly vital role during the next ten years.

"What happens to the American Merchant Marine in the next decade," he said, "may well determine the course of history for a long time to come—and I say this fully believing that America defeated would rise again."

Maritime Commission division heads are now studying the draft of a comprehensive legislative agenda to be submitted to President Truman and Congress. The draft will include aid to passenger ship construction, help for domestic shipping and new subsidy legislation as well as incorporation in the 1936 Merchant Marine Act of the basic World War II measures to become operative only upon declaration of war or national emergency.

physical disability. Services were held in New York City, 14 Sept., with burial at Arlington National Cemetery, 15 Sept.

His army service began in June, 1916, when immediately following his graduation from Des Moines College, Iowa, he was sent with the Iowa National Guard to the Mexican Border. During World War I he was in the 34th Division and in the Army of Occupation as a captain in the Quartermaster Corps. He entered the Regular Army in November 1920 as a Lieutenant of Infantry. He transferred in 1932 to the Signal Corps.

Shortly after the beginning of World War II he organized the Signal Corps Photographic Center at Long Island City, N. Y., and was in command of that post until May, 1943, when he was sent overseas. He headed the Pictorial Service, in North Africa, in Italy and later in Hawaii. After the war he became Signal Officer for MIDPAC, and served in that capacity until his return to the United States in January of this year. He was awarded the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star.

Colonel Gillette is survived by his wife, Ruth Calvert Gillette, and daughter Mary (Mrs. David E. Cavanaugh), 518 Mountain Ave., Springfield, N. J.

NEW ORLEANS PORT OF EMBARKATION

14 Oct. 1947

Col. Edward H. Connor, Jr., Commanding Officer NOPE, has been invited by the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans to advise, counsel and consult with the Port Planning Advisory Committee at a meeting held at the International House, New Orleans, regarding immediate developments of the physical assets of this port and to assist in planning a twenty-five year program of future improvements. Projects discussed included the future construction of additional wharfs and docks to increase vessel berthing space in the Port of New Orleans.

The Port Signal Officer, NOPE, Capt. L. S. Jackson, has received authority from the Chief of Signal to install a ship-to-shore radio station at NOPE. Installation of this equipment will enable the port to communicate direct with the transports and harbor craft assigned to NOPE. This means of communication will eliminate the present delay in contacting the ships and will alleviate to a great extent the congested Marine Radio channel now in use in this area.

The National Security Committee of the Association of Commerce of New Orleans has extended an invitation of membership to the Port Commander.

FT. GEORGE G. MEADE, MD.

15 Oct. 1947

Col. J. A. Klein, Second Army Adjutant General, has been elected president of the Ft. Meade Officers' Club and Lt. Col. P. E. Conant of 3rd Cavalry Group Headquarters is the new vice president.

Capt. A. C. Rosner, Jr., was reappointed Secretary-treasurer by the new board of gov-

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE heroic rescue of 69 passengers and crewmen from a giant flying boat lying helpless on the storm-lashed North Atlantic adds further lustre to the already bright record of the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard cutter Bibb, commanded by Capt. Paul B. Cronk, successfully removed all 69 aboard the stricken plane which had landed in mountainous seas 820 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

Captain Cronk and his crew are representative of the Service which responded so efficiently in time of war and in the post-war period continues to perform the difficult and dangerous feats assigned them as routine duty.

A grateful nation should reward the heroism displayed by the officers and men of the Bibb with a fitting token of recognition of their bravery and faithfulness to duty. They can be regarded as outstanding examples of a Service that has as its motto "Semper Paratus"—Always Ready.

Coast Guard Headquarters has received a copy of Administrator's Decision, Veterans Administration, No. 725, which states:

"As to the benefits under Title II of Public Law 346, 78th Congress, as amended, a discharge to accept a commission or a change in status prior to the time the person was eligible for discharge under the point or length of service system, is not to be considered a termination of his service and therefore the discharge may not be accepted as a basis for eligibility thereto. As to the benefits under Title III, an honorable discharge may be accepted as a basis for eligibility even though the discharge may have been given merely for the purpose of change in status."

In view of the fact that Coast Guard Reserve military personnel who have remained on continuous active do not hold a discharge, they would not, under the above ruling, be eligible for G.I. loans or other benefits under Titles II or III of the law referred to.

Subject to Alcoast 81-47, Coast Guard Headquarters will consider recommendations for advancements of:

(a) Non rated personnel to petty officer, third class, in the ratings of coxswain, machinist mate, carpenter's mate, yeoman (Public Information), quartermaster, ships cook, motor machinists mate, aviation electronic technicians mate, electricians mate, signalman and water tender.

(b) Petty officer third class to petty officer second class in ratings of quartermaster, aviation electronic technicians mate, boatswains mate, radarman, signalman, sonarman, water tender, pharmacists mate, fire controlman, carpenter's mate, photographers mate, ships cook, radioman, motor machinists mate, yeoman, electricians mate, yeoman (Public Information), electricians mate and electronic technicians mate.

The new listing of advancements to be considered appears in Alcoast 106.

From 29 Sept. to 1 Oct. Personnel and Recruiting officers of the 1st, 2d, 3d, 5th, 7th, 8th and 9th Districts attend a conference at Headquarters for the purpose of a general discussion of recruiting and to exchange information and ideas.

Clark of the Station Hospital, and Maj. J. B. Jones of the Second Army G-4 (Supply) Section.

And Capt. W. M. Cunningham, Commanding Officer, Headquarters Company 2101 Army Service Unit; WAC 1st Lt. R. R. Gorton, Commanding Officer, WAC Detachment, 2101 ASU, and 1st Lt. B. R. Church of the 772nd M. P. Battalion.

Maj. KENNARD S. VANDERGRIFT, TC, is now acting Chief, the Information Section, Headquarters Second Army, having succeeded Lt. Col. Guy V. Miller, FA, who has departed for a new assignment in Leghorn, Italy. Major Vandergrift, a veteran of 16 years' service in the Army, was integrated into the Regular Army in June. The new information officer is a graduate of both the San Diego Army and Navy Academy and the University of Southern California.

BROOKLYN ARMY BASE

13 Oct. 1947

The Brooklyn Army Base, New York Port of Embarkation, swung into line with President Truman's food conservation program 7 Oct. by substituting macaroni and cheese for veal cutlets at the dinner meal and Boston baked beans for hamburgers at supper. M. Sgt. Werner C. Shute, Mess Steward, estimated it resulted in a saving of 450 pounds of carcass veal and 210 pounds of carcass beef.

Appealing to civilians to recognize that there is a place for everyone interested, trained or untrained, as officers and as enlisted men within the National Guard and in the organized reserve, Maj. Gen. Ewart G. Plank, Commanding General, New York Port of Embarkation, addressed members of the Army Transportation Association attending their annual convention in New York City. The subject of General Plank's speech was "Our Civilian Army Cannot Escape Its Responsibilities."

Among the official visitors to the Overseas Supply Division, New York Port of Embarkation during the past week were: Col. H. Spencer Struble, WDGS, Washington, D. C.; Mr. L. M. Haddad, Plans and Policies Group, WDGS; and Mr. Vincent C. Tolino, ETO Courier.

HMS Sheffield, flagship of Vice Adm. Sir William Tennant, Commander-in-Chief, America and West Indies Squadron, which has been "showing the flag" in ports of Canada and the United States during the Summer, departed from Annapolis Roads 6 Oct. for a visit in Norfolk.

On Saturday, the 4th, Admiral Tennant and his Flag Captain G. B. H. Fawkes were guests at a luncheon in the Mess Hall with the Brigade of Midshipmen. Also guests of honor at the luncheon were Secretary of the Navy Sullivan; Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz; Rear Adm. Thomas L. Sprague, Chief of Naval Personnel; and Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Superintendent of the Naval Academy. Following the luncheon the group attended the Navy-Columbia football game.

Between the halves at the game, Admiral Tennant and Midshipman Kenneth Mills broadcast their impressions of their visit over a net-work broadcast.

On Sunday morning, Admiral Tennant and the officers and midshipmen of the Sheffield attended Chapel Services.

That evening, he was host aboard the ship at a large reception for distinguished guests from Annapolis, Washington, and Baltimore. Among the guests were His Excellency, the British Ambassador; their Excellencies The Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong; their Excellencies The Australian Ambassador and Mrs. Norman Makin; their Excellencies The Indian Ambassador and Mrs. M. Air Industrial Planning nominally feasible and safe method of insuring adequate supplies of equipment in an emergency. Integrate all of the above recommendations into the basic plan.

"Such a plan would provide for the maintenance of a healthy nucleus of industry capable of rapid expansion and of stockpiling, planning for producibility, encourage subcontracting, and other measures that will shorten the long period of time required to expand aircraft production in an emergency.

"7. Encourage and foster the development of commercial aviation, including air transportation, air cargo, and private flying so that civil aviation can make its maximum contribution to the maintenance of a nucleus of an aircraft industry necessary to the national security."

Mr. Clevering's Recommendations

Excerpts from Mr. Clevering's recommendations follow:

"a. In the process of development of new articles of combat equipment, very careful study should be made by the U. S. Air Forces to determine whether materials from which the article is fabricated will be available in quantities required in the event of a national emergency. In many cases it will be justifiable to accept an article of slightly greater weight and shorter life, built of materials which will be available. This is preferable to accepting an article in a form designed for maximum performance and stamina, built of materials which will not be available in sufficient quantities in the event of war.

"b. Every item of equipment procured during peacetime by the U. S. Air Forces should be designed for production on high output automatic, or so-called 'push button' tooling. This is of vital importance since, as we all know, it is impossible to train sufficient numbers of machine tool operators during a national emergency. Even if it were possible, production requirements are so great that the types of machine tools used to produce small quantities could not possibly be made available in the numbers required. Therefore, automatic machine tools and high output tools, dies, jigs and fixtures are imperative. In view of these proven facts, every piece required for use in any component of combat equipment should be designed for fabrication on mass production tools. The design of each article should be complete in every detail down to the last drawing.

"c. It is recommended that every emphasis be placed upon the problem of interchangeability of all items of aircraft equipment. This is necessary to reduce to a minimum the number of different parts required by the aircraft industry in order to accelerate production in the event of a national emergency, reduce unnecessary load on the machine tool and die industries, and reduce the number of personnel required in the overall program. It is further recommended that aircraft builders be held to a minimum on their requirements for special configurations of major items of Government furnished equipment.

"d. It is recommended that the U. S. Air Forces release procurement over at least a five year period rather than yearly as is now required by existing regulations. Such a procedure will permit manufacturers to plan depreciation on production tooling over a more reasonable period. It will also permit long range planning on development. Further, it would encourage additional manufacturers, who are not interested at present because of their inability to plan production over reasonable periods, to produce many of the minor items of equipment for the U. S. Air Forces.

"The recommendations outlined should warrant the full cooperation and support of the industries involved. However, it is the responsibility of the U. S. Air Forces to accept leadership and provide the industries with a long range program, coordinated with the other services, upon which to base industrial mobilization planning."

Hits AF Planning

Revision of industrial plans "to ensure emergency output of military aeronautical equipment," was urged by Mr. H. H. Rosenheim, chairman of the Mobilization Planning Committee of the International Register Co. of Chicago, who, until August, 1947, was an Air Force major and Director, Industrial Preparedness Staff, Army Air Forces, Wright Field, Ohio. He contended that "U. S. air power and national safety are being placed in continued peril by inadequate and incompetent handling of industrial plans" by the Air Force's Industrial Planning Program. "The continued weakness" in this, said Mr. Rosenheim, "invites a future Pearl Harbor on a national scale."

Mr. Rosenheim charged that "accountability for the scandalous conditions which prevail in Air Force Industrial Planning is largely traceable to wilful insistence upon military empire building by Air Force cliques at Wright Field and at Air Force Headquarters."

The witness claimed that "Military personnel of the Air Force have firmly refused to utilize the advice and participation of industry leaders and production specialists."

Mr. Rosenheim claimed that "The cure lies in acceptance of responsibility for Industrial Planning by the civilian component of the Air Force, the Office of the Secretary of the U. S. Air Forces.

Make Planning a Career

To guarantee adequate industrial planning Mr. J. Carlton Ward, Jr., President of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, recommended that industrial planning should be made attractive as a military career "on a par with line duty as to promotions, rank, and other awards, in which the Industrial College of the Armed Forces should play an increasing role."

Continuing his suggestion on this line, Mr. Ward urged that "The Industrial College of the Armed Forces should be raised in rank and importance for the further training of career officers in the specialized fields of military procurement and industrial planning. It should be noted that Commandants of this College have always been outranked by the Commandants of the other top military professional training schools.

"A high-ranking senior industrially trained military specialist should be a member of the top war planning groups in order to present on this top level of planning those factors that are important to the national economy and without which specific strategic and tactical war plans may be ineffective."

Mr. Robert E. Gross, President of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, suggested that the Armed Services should make procurement programs for several years ahead, and acquaint manufacturers with the programs so that plans may be made accordingly by them.

Urge Helicopters

The wisdom of adding helicopter planes to military equipment was stressed by F. N. Plasecki, President of the Helicopter Corporation of his name, this witness suggesting that large helicopters could transport guns, ammunition, trucks and other supplies to troops in advanced positions, and evacuate the wounded, and that "In future warfare where the major targets include civilian centers, the complete independence of the helicopter from the ground and aerial facilities may enable it to render invaluable service in evacuation, supply or control of such areas where damaged bridges and roads, fire and radio activity would prevent conventional transports from functioning."

Claiming that "Civil operators are hesitant to operate military configured transport aircraft because of the configuration and increased strength factors built in the aircraft necessary to handle military cargo," and that "it is anticipated that only a small number of military cargo aircraft will be available at the end of five years," Capt. C. H. Schidhauer, USNR-Ret., President of U. S. Flying Ships, Inc., suggested that "it is essential that the military transport aircraft type development be undertaken immediately as a nucleus for expansion and for close coordination with military logistic requirements. Such military operations will gradually develop personnel, methods, and material for handling military cargo."

From this witness came the suggestion that a Civil Aviation Commission should be established, charged with maintaining a research and development program for transport aircraft of military configuration, and with having an adequate transport fleet available to serve as naval and airforce auxiliaries.

Additional witnesses were (1) Reagan C. Stunkel, President of the Aviation Maintenance Corporation, who urged the necessity for National Defense of the development of new maintenance methods and philosophies and of using civilian agencies to supply management, facilities and equipment for maintenance purposes in an emergency; (2) P. R. Bassett, President of various accessory organizations, who stressed the need of proper instrumentation of planes for defense purposes; and (3) Charles B. Buckley, Manager of the Aircraft Division of the Weber Showcase and Fixture Co., Inc., who urged the need of using the facilities of airframe study to these subcommittees and recently has been gathering their reports and correlating the data assembled.

Retirement pay and the several plans under which it would be paid to service personnel and a widow's pension plan are among important studies under consideration.

Of utmost importance in the reports which the Secretaries will receive will be the findings of the various subcommittees regarding relative levels of Service pay in comparison with that of industry, Civil Service, and other workers.

The exhaustive pay and retirement study has now been in progress approximately five months. So complete has been the study that it is felt that little time will be consumed in the Office of the Secretary of Defense when the report reaches there.

Gen. Bradley to Return to Army

It is understood that when the present board for the selection of general officers of the Army completes its work, which probably will be about 1 Dec., General Omar S. Bradley, USA, senior officer of the Board, will be relieved of his assignment as Administrator of Veterans Affairs and return to duty in the Department of the Army.

General Bradley, it is said, will work with General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower until the latter leaves to take over his new post as President of Columbia University at which time General Bradley will become Chief of Staff of the Army.

Despite his tour as Veterans Administrator, General Bradley will enter upon his Chief of Staff duties eminently prepared. He has recently returned from an inspection of the European Command and he may make a tour of Pacific areas. As senior officer on the selection board he is becoming intimately familiar with the records of all the general officers of the Army and with those eligible for appointment to such. The officers ultimately selected by the board to become general officers, and thus form the senior echelons of the commands under General Bradley, will have been personally selected by the board which he heads and thus not only will be of his choice but will owe their advancement in large measure to his advocacy of them. His return to the Army prior to General Eisenhower's departure will fortify him with a thorough knowledge of all that has been going on in the service and with the present policies in meeting problems.

Sports Front

Two facts stood out in the Army-Illinois 0-0 standoff: (1) good Eastern football is still on a par with the brand purveyed by the Western Conference, and (2) Herman Hickman, no minnow himself, has built a whale of a line at West Point.

Army played tight, conservative football. Considering they never got inside the Illinois 20, you might say the Cadets never really threatened. The Illini outstatistick their hosts all over the field. Yet the record books—11 record the result as the same 0-0 tie—saw in headlines last Sunday.

It is difficult to see how Army could have played otherwise. Stripped of enough backfield aces to stock three teams, the Cadets have combined manpower and coaching skill to produce a front wall inferior to none. When your line excels your backfield, you play your football close to the chest and wait for the breaks. Against Illinois, no breaks came.

Navy edged closer to the win column with a thrilling last second 14-14 tie with Duke, previously undefeated and counted a top team by most observers.

Late in the fourth quarter it looked as though a hard-fought game would resolve itself into a 7-7 tie. A Duke pass connected for 45 yards and a touchdown with less than four minutes to play, giving the Indianapolis future a murky tinge.

Navy came back with a rush, however. Ben Moore ran the Duke kickoff back to the Navy 47, and diminutive but capable quarterback Bob Horne took over the show. Mixing his plays well and keeping a weather eye on the clock, he sparked the Midshipmen's drive downfield. Even a dropped pass on the 3 failed to daunt the Blue and Gold, as Hawkins capped the climax with a scoring plunge from the 1. The clock at the time showed 8 seconds to play.

A word of commendation is in order for Jim Wills, place kicking specialist just up from the B squad. Having added the first extra point effortlessly, he trotted from the bench with the score 14-13 and the game riding on his skill, which met the test admirably.

Games for Saturday, 18 October: Navy-Cornell at Ithaca, which should be fairly close, and Army-V.P.I. at West Point, which shouldn't be.

Both teams on 25 Oct. will tackle tough customers. Army meets Columbia at New York. The experts will probably pick Army to win, but as was remarked in this space prior to the Navy-Columbia game, when Lou Little wants to win one, he can be a tough customer. And Little would certainly love to beat Army.

Navy will doubtless be the underdog against Penn. The Quakers are tops in the East and among the strongest in the country, with but two key men lost from last year's eleven. On football ability Penn rates the nod, but the Midshipmen take back seats to no one in the matter of scrap and hustle. Such items have been known to turn the tide before.

JOTTINGS . . . With the third day's event canceled, the standing of horses and riders in the Olympic equestrian trials, held at Ft. Riley, was as follows: 1st. Swing Low, ridden by Lt. Col. Charles H. Anderson; 2nd, Reno Rythm, ridden by Lt. Col. Frank S. Henry; 3rd, Major Vix, ridden by Capt. Jonathan R. Burton; 4th, Reno Palisade, ridden by Col. Earl F. Thomson. The judges were Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, Col. John T. Cole, Col. J. W. Wofford, Ret., and Col. Franklin F. Wing. . . Arnold Tucker passed to two touchdowns and scored another as Randolph Field beat Corpus Christi N.A.S., 33-6. . . For the second straight year, Ft. Buchanan won the Antilles Dept. baseball championship. The victors downed Borinquen Field, 5-0, in the final game of the tournament. . . William J. Larkin, a civilian employee, captured the Naval Academy golf tourney by defeating Col. Jack Dobson, 3 and 1. Dobson is an army colonel on duty at Annapolis as an instructor. . . The 8th Air Force Bombers' eleven has taken two in a row, trouncing Los Alamos AAF 27 0 and Ft. Bliss, 12-3. The Bombers are pointing for a 25 Oct. engagement with Randolph Field.
